

App-like file handling

In looking at building editors is how to duplicate native app file management features. Chrome has offered many options over the years but I have never found one that actually worked.

The File System Access API is the latest model available in Chrome.